

I – You – We and the World: The beauty of the different perspectives and voices that live in us

	I	You	We	World
pre-personal	I am feeling, smelling, tasting, seeing, hearing – sounds, images, tastes, smells, feelings... Sometimes I emerge, and then I merge again.	You are a part, an extension of me. But why don't you always hear me, when I call you, when I yearn for you?	Together we can appease the Spirits. Sometimes, one of us needs to be sacrificed. But that is okay, because We live further.	The world is a magic place that we cannot understand or control.
Separate Self	I am I, have boundaries, am separate. I learn to recognize and respect my boundaries more and more.	I am I and You are You. You have your own path, which I cannot always understand, but respect.	We = I + You: Together we can do things that none of us could do alone. For that, we join forces.	The world is our playground that we can explore and change voluntarily. We try the limits of our power.
True Self	I am the One, the Eternal, the Motionless Mover, the Ground of Being – unseparated – eternal – unmanifest.	You are the same as I. There is only one Impersonal One that shines through you and me simultaneously.	We look at and recognize each other. True Self sees True Self and knows it is One.	The world is the material expression of the One. Emptiness and Form are Not-Two. We are unseparated from the World.
Unique Self	I am the unique perspective, the unique expression of the One that manifests through me in eternal becoming – through qualities and gifts that wouldn't be in the world without me. It is my deepest responsibility and joy to awaken to my unique, yet not separate, perspective and give my gifts.	You are not separate from me, yet absolutely unique. I see your specialness and bow before your unique expression. When I look at you, I feel deep love, connection, and awe for the specialness that the One expresses through you. And with Hafiz, "I wish that I could show you... the astonishing light of your own being."	We are pieces of a bigger puzzle that we complement. If only one piece would be missing, the puzzle wouldn't be complete. Through each of us bringing in our own specialness, we are forming an absolutely unique We that is more than the sum of its parts. We complement each other while serving a greater purpose, in which we can unfold and recognize ourselves more and more.	The world is full of wonderful forms that are an expression of the union and uniqueness that can be found on every level of existence. This perception leads to the re-enchantment of the world, which simultaneously turns into a place for co-creation. Love is the strongest force in the universe that connects everything with everything.
Evolutionary Unique Self	I wake up to the consciousness that the same force expresses through me that started the Big Bang; "the Love that," as Dante said, "moves the Sun and all the other stars."	This same force and love express through you in your own unique way. I am in deep awe for and interested in what you can bring into the world independently of me and which difference we can make together.	Together, we serve the greater purpose of the unfolding of love and consciousness in the world, in which we are held simultaneously. And together we grow into becoming conscious co-creators.	The world is an expression of growing Uniqueness and all-encompassing love – the evolution of matter, consciousness, and love. Consciousness is the inside of matter; love is the inside of consciousness.
